Barramundi (Lates calcarifer) has pinkish-white flesh and cooks up firm and flaky. With a clean, mild and sweet flavor and delicious skin that crisps up nicely when cooked, Barramundi will quickly become the star of your menu.

Take advantage of Barramundi's Australian pedigree and pair this tasty fish with whatever Australian whites you have on your menu! Or, suggest a cold Foster's lager - Barramundi goes great with beer.

This is a wonderful fish to suggest to people who claim they don't like seafood - it's very mild, wonderfully flaky and moist.

Barramundi cooks up quickly, like Snapper or Rockfish and you can sauté it, bake it, or broil it. Once they try it, they'll love it!
