CORVINA

WILD CAUGHT

PRODUCT OF PANAMA, COSTA RICA,
ECUADOR AND MEXICO

Corvina (Cynoscion spp.) is a name used for member of the Drum or Croakers (family Scaenidae)

Caught via hook and line, this delicious fish cooks up nice and firm with large white flakes. The flavor of the meat is mild and slightly sweet.

This is a great fish to highlight your signature seasonings and sauces!

Corvina is quite versatile to cook with and is an excellent choice for grilling, roasting, sautéing or served in fish soups and stews. Let your guests know that if they like Grouper or Snapper, they'll definitely love Corvina.
